

Agreement For Reciprocal Membership Privileges
Between The Physical Society Of The Republic Of China
(TAIWAN)
And
The Slovak Physical Society

To enhance scientific relations and improve communications between physicists in Taiwan and Slovakia, the Physical Society of the Republic of China (PSROC) and the Slovak Physical Society (SPS) agree to extend reciprocal membership privileges as defined below:

I. Scientific Contacts

1. Members of both Societies may submit papers to the meetings organized by one of the Societies with the same privileges and limitations.
2. The PSROC and the SPS will facilitate direct liaison between individual physicists, encouraging attendance of conferences, symposia, summer schools and other scientific meetings in Republic of China and Slovakia.
3. The PSROC and the SPS will provide advice and information to assist physicists from both countries to carry out visits to the other country.

II. Scientific Collaboration

1. The PSROC and the SPS will exchange information concerning scientific projects, which may be of interest to the other side.
2. PSROC and SPS agree to work closely together to promote collaboration between physicists of Slovakia and Republic of China in joint research projects, bilateral workshops, and in exchanging physics journals.

III. Duration

1. This document shall come to force after signature of both sides and shall continue for five years thereafter.
2. Amendments to the document shall be by mutual agreement.
3. The agreement shall be extended by further five years period unless either PSROC or SPS desire to the contrary.

Signed for the PSROC

Shih-Chang Lee
President, PSROC

Date: 9.10.2002

Signed for the SPS

Jaroslav Staniček
President, SPS

Date: 9.10.2002